TESTIMONY OF DANIEL B. HASBROOK.

Daniel B. MRS. LYMAN'S LECTURE TO LADIES. Yesterday Afternoon's Lecture at Associntion Hall.

A large and attentive audience of ladies assembled at Association Hall yesterday asternoon to listen to the first of a series of lectures upon physiology and hygiene by Mrs. Walter C. Lyman. The lectures are in response to a call from a number of the leading ladies of this city. The lecture of yesterday was upon "Respiration, Structure of the Breathing Organs; How to Strengthen the Lungs and Bronchial Tubes." The lecture was beautifully illustrated and explained by the aid of a stereopticon with highly fluished colored views. These were thrown upon a screen thirty feet square, displaying the colossal size of the heart, with its valves, arteries and veins; also the circusquare, displaying the colossal size of the heart, with its vaives, arreires and veins; also the circulation of the blood to the lungs and neighboring organs; blood corpuscies greatly enlarged, showing the healthy and the diseased condition, demonstrating the presence of cancer, sattrieum, &c. In opening her discourso Mrs. Lyman addicted to the different states of the blood, the different colors and thickness of the millions of fittle glands that pick up what is impure, and how taken off; how cancers are formed from the diseased blood, and how the brain is affected when the blood is impure. The lecturer went on to say that nine-tenths of the sucides were committed from poisonous blood, which affected the brain, for bad blood can never reason. Crime, she said, would never cease until the capitalist would build small houses for the poor. Pent-up air gives bad blood. Men, the speaker said, were more healthy than women because they dressed warmer, wore their clothes close to their bodies, the weight hanging from their shoulders, while women suspended theirs from their hips. After a few remarks upon the coming lecture of today, "Digestion," the audience dispersed, evidentij highly delighted.

THE SOUTH AND SLAVERY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-

A sentence in your leading article of this morning turnishes so interesting a coincidence that I beg to call your attention to it. Speaking of Mr. Sumner's death, and sketching his attitude to slavery and the slave lords, you remark :-

No public man from the North had ever en-tered the Senate Chamber without swearing No public man from the North had ever chartered the Senate Chamber without swearing allegiance to the royal power of slavery, without, we lear, using too willing to take the oath, or any oath, however dishonorable, to "preserve peace." And the South meant that there should be no peace unless slavery was respected as a savery institution above the Union and the constitution, as the very corner stone of the Republic.

The last sentence reads almost like an excerpt from a letter which the late James H. Hammond, ex-Governor and Senator of South Carolina, wrote me in 1860, just after the rebels had threatened to fire upon the Star of the South, in case she attempted the victualling of Fort Sumter. He said:-"You see what I have often told youslavery is stronger than the Union. I have no hope of a reconstruction of the confederation upon the old basis. We want no Union except one in which the slave power shall be largely and permanently predominant. We can be safe in

That gives the keynote to the whole trouble, and the future historian of our civil war need look no morther back than this utterance of the great South Carolina aristocrat for a text to frame his argument upon. General Hammond was a man not merely of impulses, as some have charged, but of deep convictions also. I recall how, when I was a guest in 1857 at Silver Bind, he used to chale and rage at the inconsistencies of slaveowners who need to Wilberforce's idea of the sinfulness of slavery, and yet held on to their slaves. He maintained that the institution was essentially right, and said that only upon this basis could the South stand up for one moment at the bar of public opinion. He hated abolitionists with all his neart, and yet, with rather comical inconsistency, joined with Edmund Ruffin in pressing me to accept the management of the Agricultural Bureau at Wash-That gives the keynote to the whole trouble, and

THE CHARLICK INVESTIGATION.

Election Tactics—Putting the "Watchers" Behind the Rail.

The investigation into the matter pertaining to the appointment of democratic inspectors of election last November by Police Commissioner Charlick was resumed yesterday in the Supreme Court, before Judge Donahue. The testimony is altogether of a cumulative character, that of yesterday being entirely confined to eliciting the fact that the Tamm by "watchers" were, by spacial that the Tamm by "watchers" were, by spacial they could control. The race of which he was a type and representative is passing away forever. A scholar of high attainments, a gentleman of courtly demeanor, a host whole section an example of intelligent management, a prominent figure in the social system that was the corner stone of the South and the source of all our troibles, he yet will, in all probability, be remembered by a single sentence, heedlessly fung out in a moment of debate. I mean the one about our Northern "mudsills" and "greasy mechanics," Yours respectivily, H. S. OLCOTT.

THE EARL OF DERBY.

in 1847-Lords Stanley and Manners "Dead Broke" in Texas and Borrow $10,000 from Governor Henderson.

The following very interesting story, whether true or false, will be read with interest at the present time. It is from a late issue of the Dallas (Texas) Herald:-

(Texas) Herald:—

The late reconstruction of the British Cabinet by the retirement of Mr. Gladstone and the elevation of Disraent to the chieratishing of that august assemblinge of famous Englishmen known as the British Cabinet brings to mind a singular it not romantic opisode in Texas in 1847.

In that year two beardless young men, evidently of English bysicognomy, made their appearance in Marshall, Texas, where the District Court was in session, Hon. Ovin M. Roberts presiding, James Pinkney Henderson was then Governor of the State, and was in attendance on the Court as an attorney in Pre-chagaged cases. He had been Minister from the Republic of Texas to France, and was much in England during his service.

The two young Britishers sought and obtained an introduction to Governor Henderson, when the following dislogue ensued:—

First Young Englishman—Governor Henderson, we have sought an introduction in order to raise some money. We have been making the tour of America and have examisted our means. We cannot wait, but must have money, in order to reach New York in due time.

Governor Henderson—Who are you and what

New York in due time.

Governor Hendersen—Who are you and what evidence have you that you are what you profess to be?

FIRST ENGLISHMAN (a beardiess youth)—I am the elder son of the Earl of Derby, and, by courtesy in English society, am called Lord Stanley. My young irlend here with me is, in like manner, Lord Man-

Governor Handerson—How much money do you

Hers.

Governor Henderson—How much money do you want?

First Englishman—Ten thousand dollars. We have been to St. Louis, Santa Fé, Albuquerque, Donna Anna and in New Mexico; saw much of that country, attended parties, spent money, and our allowance of $300,000, since we lett New York, has been exhausked. We want $10,000 to reach New York, having to bass through New Orleans, Washington and other cities.

Governor Henderson—What evidence have you that my confidence will not be betrayed—that you are what you claim to be?

First Englishman—(placing his hand over his heart)—Simply, Governor Henderson, that I am a Stanley. A Stanley cannot and dare not be dishonorable. I have no other pledge to give.

In a lew moments, after seeing that noble old Roman, William T. (Buck) Scott, the money was placed in the hands of the unknown young Englishman. In a few days the two left, every one predicting that Governor Henderson and Buck scott had been egregiously taken in. Glorious "Old Pink" said, "No, gentlemen; a Stanley cannot afford to deceive."

In due time draits in stering bills of exchange came to cover the whole amount, letters of thanks from the Earl of Derby for kindness to his son, followed by pipes of wine and many other presents, showing that the grand old patriot, Pinkney Henderson, had not been deceived, but had done a kindness to two honorable but extravagant young men. During their stay in Marshail an old citizen of Dallas—then a young man just from Tennessee—bad repeated contests with Lord Stanley the ford.

Now, the question is, is that Lord Stanley the feat of the standard of the contest of the Cycles of the cycles ford.

Now, the question is, is that Lord Stanley the Earl of Derby, second officer in the Cabinet of Great Britain?

Our opinion is that he is the same smooth faced youth to whom Pinkney Henderson furnished the needfal in Marshall in 1847."

LOSS OF AN UNKNOWN SHIP.

Three Seamen Drowned in Attempting sailor's presence of mind, immediately launched the lifeboat, double manned, and sent it to their rescue, but, owing to the strong breeze and heavy sea, the lifeboat could not reach them.

In the meantime the steamer had been put in motion, but, being a very long ship, the first circle she made she fell short of the waterlogged boat; the next she just reached it. Those clinging to the boat were very much exhausted—so much so that when a bowline was thrown to the first officer he barely succeeded in getting it; but when the ship raised on the sea and took nim out of the water he fell and went down and was not seen afterward. The carpenter had been washed away from the boat and clung to an oar until he sunk exhausted, being unable to swim. The third seaman was drowned on the capsizing of the boat. The three survivors were taken on board by ropes being thrown to them, and in a few hours were able to return to duty. The lifeboat and crew were soon picked up, and the steamship Jamalca headed for her port of destination, while all hands mourned bitterly the fate that shaped their course across that of the abandoned bark.

mourned bitterly the fate that shaped their course across that of the abandoned bark.

Captain Watson is of the epinion that some foul play might have been going on aboard the bark, as her sails were all furfed as snugly as if in port; the only thing adrift was the lower part of the spanker. There was no name or hading port painted on her. Her appearance and rig was that of a German vesset.

A NEW ABATTOIR AT WEEHAWKEN.

The Meat Packers and Shippers to Do Their Own Slaughtering. party of about fifty gentlemen embarked on board the Eric Railroad tug Buffalo yesterday afternoon bound on a tour of inspection of the property of the new Abattoir Company organized among the provision dealers of the New York Produce Exchange Among the prominent business men and invited guests present may be mentioned Messrs. G. R. Bianchard, Second Vice President of the Eric Railroad; — Tyson, Pourth Vice President Eric Raitroad; Charles Robinson, President National Stock Yard Company; John and P. J. Holzdebar, Archibald Baxter, John Lockett, Chamberlina, Roc & Co.; Robert Thailon, George Henken, Jr.; Frederick Link, William Fiammer, James Steele, of Chicago, and Messrs. Beckstein & Ahrens. The grounds of the company, which are situated at Oak Chif, near Weenawken, are admirably adapted for the purpose, and everything that money and experience can do will be freely lavished to insure its success. The capacity of the abattoir, when completed, will afford lachities for siaughtering not less than 5,000 hogs per day, while there will be space enough upon the same floor—the second story—for erecting additional apparatus if required. It is proposed to slaughter all the hogs on the second noor, and immediately atter slaughtering to hang them upon barges, sufficient in number and suitably equipped for this purpose, moored alongside the buildings. There will also be apportioned sufficient space and apparatus to slaughter soo head of cattle daily, while a noor, 175 feet long and 105 feet wide, will be reserved for sheep if required. The contract with the National Stock Yard Company also requires them to harmish any additional space which may hereaster be required for the enlargement of this business. The property embraces a tract of seventy-five acres, inclinaing a water front of over 2,000 feet. The ferry accommodations are ample and the appliances for avoiding offal odors most complete. The refuse, while in a sweet and nealthy condition, is to be converted into fertilizers, while under the present system this valuable material is generally thrown sway, beauly through the sewers, into the waters which surround the city. The ultimate object of the company is to effect arrangements looking toward the removal of all the slaughtering now performed in the city limits to Weenawken for the mutual benefit of all connected with this branch of the trade. PELL INTO A DOCK.

James Millenbrook, of No. 205 Third street, fell overboard from pier foot of Thirty-fifth street yesterday afternoon. He was rescued by some of the men working on the dock. Millenbrook was removed to the Twenty-first precinct station house, where he was cared for by the surgeon UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, March 16, 1874. The following decisions were rendered in the Supreme Court to-day :-

Supreme Court to-day:—

Travellers' Insurance Company vs. Seaver - Error to Circuit Court for Vermont.—The main questions in this case were whether the Court below erred in instructing the jury that the driving of a race, when regarded as an exposure of the life of the insured to unnecessary perfl, was to be considered in the light in which fair minded people of the community looked upon it, and if, under the ordinary regulations of such matches, such fair minded people would not regard the driving of the match as within the provisions of a life policy against such exposure, then the representatives of the insured, who was entitled while so driving, could recover, and whether it was error for the Court to instruct the urry that, if the insured was killed by the reckwhether it was error for the Court to instruct the jury that, if the insured was killed by the reckless driving or his competitor and not by the ordinary mischance of the race, then there should be a recovery. It is held that the Court erred in both instances, that the question of willing exposure was for the jury, after all the facts were before them, and that, if the intentions of the competitor of the insured were as bad as the charge of the Court implied, and the reckless driving was for the purpose of winning the race at all hazards, still the fact did not take the case out of the clause of the policy against within exposure. It was against just such danger the company had intended to protect itself. Keversed. Mr. Justice Miler delivered the opinion.

the policy against wilful exposure. It was against just such danger the company had intended to protect itself. Reversed. Mr. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

In the case of Trask vs. Maguire, from the Missouri Circuit Court, the question was whether the property of the present St. Louis and from Monntain Railroad Company is exempt from state taxalion. The present road was purchased from the State at a sale made to reimburse the State treasury the interest and principal or bonds issued to the oid company of the same name which was in default, and it was contended that the sale carried with it. together with the right to operate the road, the right of exemption from State taxation, because the act of the lenghature authorizing the sale provided for the transfer of the property, interest, &c., of the oid company. It is nere held that the act of the Legislature authorizing the sale provided for the transfer of the property, interest, &c., of the oid company. It is nere held that the act of the Legislature could not revive and authorize to be transferred an exemption which had ceased to exist by the default of the oid company, even it such was the intention, because the new constitution of the State had in the meantime provided against such exemptions in the interest. Judgment affirmed. Mr. Justice Field delivered the opinion.

Steamship Pennsylvania vs. bark Mary E. Throop—Appeal from the Eastern District of New York.—In this case the Court held that, while it may be that when the bark was discovered by the steamer it was too late to avoid a collision, still it is possible that if when the bell on her starboard bow was announced her heim had been put to starboard instead off to port the colision might not have occurred; but, if this is not to be attributed to her as a fault, there is no excuse found in the evidence for the high rate of speed at which she was sailing during so dense a log as prevailed when the vessels came together. Notwithstanding the log was so dense that objects could not be seen at a dist

BROOKLYN COMMON COUNCIL.

Respect to the Memory of the Illustrious Dead-Information Called For Upon a Delicate Subject, the Ages of Lady Teachers-United States Lands.

The business of the regular weekly session of the Board of Aldermen was opened yesterday by Alderman Ropes, who presented a series of resolutions of respect to the memory of the late ex President Fillmore and Senator Sumner. The Alderman also delivered an eulogistic address upon this national theme. Alderman Richardson also presented a resolution upon the deceased senator and read a oriel address. His resolution, of which the following is a copy, was adopted:—

the following is a copy, was adopted:—

Resolved, That hy the death of Charles Summer the world has lost a man whose labors were effective and continuous for the theerty, elsevation and progress of the whole human race—a man universally known as the foe of all tyranny, the detender of the oppressed, the profector of the detenders and the friend of the slave. As a statesman whose integrity was never questioned, whose virtue was without reproach, whose courage never failed, and whose zeal never failed, and show the seal never failed, and has persistent adherence to and his elequent, energetic advocacy of his convictions of right, in spire of every temptation and in the face of all obloquy and opposition, present him as a model worthy of the admiration and initiation of all the death is the loss not alone of Massachusetts, but of the nation and of the world.

BROOKLYN SHOPLIFTERS CAUGHT.

Yesterday afternoon Detectives Foik and Corwin, of the Central office, arrested Cassie Mack and Ida Clements, two very stylishly attired young girls, residents of Williamsburg, in Atlantic street on a charge of shoplitting. Upon being searched on a charge of shoplitting. Upon being searched at headquarters one piece of silk, valued at $100, was found in their possession. It was stolen from the store of Messrs. O'Brien & Co., Atlantic street; also a piece of silk and other articles, valued at $50, taken from the stores of Mr. Lewis, No. 267 Fulton street; Walters & Smeeters, No. 161 Atlantic street, and Journeay & Burnham's. The prisoners have been twice committed to the House of the Good Shepherd for larceny. They are neld for examination to-day.

THE HARLEM RIVER SURVEY. Major General Newto has made a report to the Chief of Engineers on the Harlem River sur vey. He says :-

vey. He says:—

The Harlem River forms an important passage from the Hudson River to Long Island sound and New York Harbor. Its upper part has been much neglected. An obsequence, has been obstructed by crifficial obstacles, while the natural once have been suferred to increase. It is the water boundary on the north-side of Manhattan Island, separating it from the main. The following is given as the proposed plan of improvements:—Raking, alone, would not prove a successful means of removing the obstructions still means of removing the obstructions to sate channel navigation, formed by bridge piera, consisting as they do of heavy stores in some places and of strong material firmly imbedded in others. Some surface blasting will be at first necessary in order to reduce the size of the larger stones and also to start the compact masses before any successful artempt at grappling can be made. The removal of the remaining rocky obstructions must be performed by means of a systematic process of rock drilling, blasting and grappling. The comparatively short distance of these rocky obstructions from the buildings on shore will necessitate the use of small charges, which will cause these operations to be somewhat tedions and expensive. The estimate of cost on the proposed improvement is $167,876.
